

Name	Biography
Jan Edmondson	Born and raised in Oswestry, I have worked in both public and private sectors with most of the past 25 years being in education. My Business Management degree has been useful in my roles in primary and secondary schools as well as a member of Shropshire Council's Education Business Strategy Team. I have governance experience at both primary and secondary levels. My daughter is a former pupil and I am delighted to be able to support the school that gave her such a good start in life.
Allison Bowen	I was born and raised in St Martins and was a pupil at the school myself. My two children now attend St Martins School, one in secondary and one in primary. I have been a parent governor for six years and feel that with my local knowledge and my experience as a Human Resources Manager I am in a good position to be able to support the school in achieving their aims within the local community and ultimately delivering the education to our children that they all deserve. Being able to support education is a privilege.
Kim Collins	I can honestly say that education and the provision of first class education has been something I have always believed in and striven to provide. Education is the key to success. I have over 30 years experience in education in a variety of different settings and have a good understanding of the challenges faced by the education sector in the current climate. As a former teacher, head of department and ISI Inspector I think I can safely say that, in terms of school leadership and government, I have seen the good, the bad and the ugly!
Stella Ellis	I have worked as teacher across multiple schools within Shropshire and Telford & Wrekin for over 18 years. I feel working across different schools has given me a level of insight to question and challenge, to ensure together we are building a better school for every member of our school. I am highly organised, able to problem solve creatively and you may have seen in some staff meetings, speak my mind. Since joining St Martins, I have been lucky enough to work with some fabulous teachers and respect everyone's commitment to building a better school for all students and staff. I feel strongly that the views and opinions of all staff should be listened to and communicated to our governors.
Andy Hall	In my previous career as a secondary science teacher, I held roles, at many levels of the school, including within curriculum departments, pastoral care and safeguarding. I believe this allows me to bring a wealth of knowledge and understanding to the governing body, providing that essential supporting hand that governors provide to the school. In my current career, I find myself employing previous St Martins students as my role as a Company Director in Oswestry. The skills I have learnt as a company director are very different from the skills I used in my teaching days but would certainly have some use in the role of a school governor. As a parent governor, I would be delighted to represent the voice of parents whilst bringing my skills and experiences to the governing body. The role will also allow me the opportunity to support the school.
Vicki Silver	I worked at the University of Chester for 11 years, including at University Centre Shrewsbury since it opened in 2015. I led and taught degree courses in Childhood and Youth Studies, and well as Organisational Change and Development. These courses were for adults wanting to return to study alongside working, to develop their own careers as well as make a positive impact on children and families, colleagues etc. Prior to becoming a University Lecturer, I was Children's Workforce Development Manager, ran an Outdoor Education Centre and a Primary school teacher. I have also been involved in various 'action research' projects, including finding ways of improving local health services.
